DULLES AND WILEY HAVE A HOT ONE ON HAND. Secretary of State John Foster Dulles (left) and Chairman Alexander Wiley (R-Wis) of the state foreign relations committee, talk earnestly in a state department corridor as controversy flared over the nomination of Charles E. Bohlen as ambassador to Russia. Wiley sat in as Dulles held a new conference, the later disputing a charge of Sen. McCarran (D-Nev) that Bohlen's appointment was cleared over objections from state department security officer. Between them is Assistant Secretary of State Carl McCardle.

True To Prediction

When Dwight Eisenhower writes his presidential memoirs, his countrymen will learn how hard it was for him to keep his mouth shut about Congress during the first two months of his administration.

But if he continues to refuse to let Congress bully hem into verbal blasts his countrymen may honor him for solving the age - old problem of friction between the executive and legislative branches. It always has been a problem of jealousy over prestige.

President Eisenhower is approaching it from a new direction. Realizing that Congress is a coordinate branch of the government and has been obscured by the White House in recent years, he deliberately has put it into the limelight for a change.

He and his cabinet have picked no fights with congressmen, though some congressmen have gone out of their way to fights with them - notably Sen. McCarthy.

The White House has not been used as a sounding board for the kind of executive pronouncements which have been a dime a dozen in recent years. Dwight Eisenhower has faded into the background so successfully that his critics are beginning to wonder if he is in danger of losing his executive identity.

This was one of the predictions made about his presidency - that he would rely on cooperation and good will to perform the duties of the office. The prediction has come true since Jan. 20. He has not tried to strong-arm Congress into doing anything against its will.

Eventually, President Eisenhower may have to defend himself against members of Congress who seek his destruction and won't settle for anything less. But if his strategy is to let such members wreak their own destruction by seeking his, it's beginning to work.

The rope he has made available for their self-hanging is being put to the best possible use. President Eisenhower and his cabinet can afford to be patient a while longer, while Congress learns how it feels to work with an executive who doesn't insist on doing all the talking.

'No, Virginia'

Life on the Potomac, tax-wise, is real and earnest for the Eisenhower administration.

It is real and earnest for all of us. Santa Claus is not going to be here this year. Rep. Reed of New York finally has abandoned hope for his bill to cut income taxes. As if to deepen the sorrow, President Eisenhower has thrown his weight against the much-discussed proposal to put a 25 per cent ceiling on income taxes. He says this would endanger the country's financial structure if it were adopted.

As Rep. Reed points out, this is the reverse of what many citizens who voted for Eisenhower thought they were going to get. Whether or not the Eisenhower campaigners actually promised tax reduction, millions of voters thought they were promising it. One thing is certain; they did not promise to keep taxing and spending at existig levels.

Voters thought they were voting for purdence, economy and tax reduction. If the Eisenhower campaign had been conducted on the premise and in the promis that nothing was going to be changed, there would have been no land-

Russian Counter-Punching

At about the time a pair of Russian interceptor away from the coast of Siberia last Sunday, the Alsop brothers were putting the finishing touches on an article about Russian reconnaisance planes flying over North America.

The Alsops reported that at least 10 vapor trails have been reported over Alaska and planes chased a U.S. reconnaisance plane Canada and that these could have been left only by high-flying Russian airplanes. None of the planes was intercepted. They and the many other Russian planes which presumably have been flown over this continent have revealed that the far north is an unguarded American

It has not been revealed that any of the approaches to the Soviet Union are unguardeda fact of the utmost importance to the U.S. Strategic Air Command, which would be expected to punch Russia silly if the Kremlin decided to open an aerial offensive.

Evidence that the Russians have been exploring America's aerial frontiers without interference suggests how deeply embarrassing to U.S. aviation the interference encountered on Rusgia's frontiers has been.

Make a quiet life your ambition. -1 Thessalonians 4:11 (Weymouth).

A flower more sacred than far-seen success Perfumes my solitary path; I find Sweet Compensation in my humbleness, And reap the harvest of a quiet mind.

-John Trowbridge Today's Message

We are an ambitious people, but here, in our text, the Apostle Paul suggests an ambition that would hardly have occurred to active Americans of this modern age. And yet, none could be more appropriate for us. We live in such bustling, boisterous times, that if we could attain it, it would prove an antidote to our feverish breathlessness and nerve exhaustion.

A quiet life is not to be symbolized by a mute sphinx, a smiling Buddha or a sequestered tarn. It is not to be identified with the silence of indifference, the death of desire or artificial repose. Rather it is to be likened unto a river with its peaceful, unhurried flow to its

A quiet life performs its charity without the sounding of trumpets; extends its sympathy to the burdened and bereaved without the conventional chatter; and fulfills its mission in the calm assurance that "all things will work out for the good of those who love God." Merely department store dummies in an atomic bomb test at Yucca Flat . . . but did they not stare at the living everywhere and say, "You, the people of flesh and blood, are the ones to be pitied?" Did not the plastic stuffed figures flash the question, "How crazy can people get when they have minds and hearts instead of straw and cotton inside?" Well, to this department, the human race, following the scene at Yucca Flat, didn't look any more sensible than if its members, too, had plastic bodies, unfeeling innards and plastic features.

Just before the explosion we dropped in fancy into one of the two white frame houses in which the dummies met the test and had a chat with them . . Popper Dummy, Mommer Dummy and the rest. "You're certainly in a tough spot," we said to Popper Dummy.

"Look who's talking-" put in the entire Dummy family at once. "What I mean is that you are really taking it," we said.

"Don't run away with the notion that only dummies are in danger," said Popper Dummy. "In fact, speaking of dummies, mister, aren't we all?"

"Of course, you are just figures," we went on. "You have no brain; no senses that give pain and understanding."

"It must be terrible to have a brain and use it, for what human beings of all countries are using brains for," put in Mommer Dummy. "We have nothing but sawdust in our heads, but I'll say one thing for sawdust: it never thinks up any new methods for human destruction. That goes for a heart, too. All I have for a heart is a wad of cotton, but it is incapable of cruelty."

We remarked that all the dummies in the Yucca Flat explosion wore fixed stares and such stupid expressions.

"You mean the expression on the faces of live human beings these days is GOOD!" exclaimed the dummies in unison again. 'Aren't you scared?" we asked a group of four dummies seated in front of a fireplace in the doomed house. "Nothing scares us except a fear we might some day turn out to be HUMAN BEINGS,"

One wax figure seemed to have a more intelligent expression than the others. It turned out this one, a clothing store dummy, had been in a window opposite a book store for some time. The book store had featured an exhibit of Bibles during the Lenten season. This dummy wore a plainly puzzled look. "Dummies haven't much with which to think," he explained, "but somewhere, somehow I got the story of Golgotha, the Place of the Sjull, and heard the words 'Plaiting a crown of thorns, they put it on His Head.' . . . 'They spat in His face and, buffeted Him. . . . And behold the curtain of the temple was torn from top to bottom AND THE EARTH QUAKED AND THE ROCKS WERE RENT.' . . . Oh, I know the world is in an atomic-bomb race and that America must strive for the biggest ones as a matter of self-preservation. But you commented on my puzzed look. Who wouldn't be PUZZLED! !"

"But there was another morning, very early, we remarked, "Then, also, the sun had just risen. A young man in a white robe said, 'Do not be terrified. You are looking for Jesus of Nazareth, Who was crucified. He has risen,

He is not here." "Yes. And there lies the hope of the world," the figure with the very puzzled expression

> MEMO TO ADVERTISERS Grandfather was a thrifty soul but how he gambled!

In fact, once upon a time, all business men who advertised were, willing or unwilling, confirmed speculators. They couldn't help it, because in those days they had no way of knowing what they would get for their money.

Today, advertising money can be invested on a basis of facts-the information in the reports of the Audit Bureau of Circulations, a national, cooperative and non-profit association of 3300 advertisers, advertising agencies and publishers. The A.B.C., organized in 1914, has established standards for measuring the circulations of newspapers and periodicals; just as there are definite standards for the weights and measures of merchandise.

This newspaper is a member of A.B.C. Our circulation is audited by experienced circulation auditors. The information thus obtained is issued in A.B.C. reports which show how much circulation we have, where it goes, how it was obtained and other facts that tell business men what they get for their money when they advertise in these columns.

Black Hawks To Battle Canadiens In Opener

By The Associated Press For the first time in seven years, the Chicago Black Hawks will take part in the National Hockey League's Stanley Cup playoffs. The playoffs, which get underway Tuesday night, will send the Hawks against the second - place Montreal Canadiens at Montreal and the defending champion Detroit Red Wings against the thirdplace Boston Bruins in Detroit. Chicago wound up the 1952-1953 season Sunday night in fourth place by defeating the tail-end New York Rangers, 3-1. The victory gave them 69 points to 67 for Porente, which whipped Boston by

In the only other league games, Detroit and Montreal played to a 1-1 deadlock.

Nine different players were seen at third base for the Pittsburgh Pirates in 1952. Pete Castiglione saw the most action there, playing in 57 games.
